A Dog Called Barker

by Andrew Dickenson

A grey rocket ship is positioned in the bottom right corner, angled upwards and to the left. It has a conical nose cone and a cylindrical body with some details like a window and lines.

There wasn't anything remarkable or special about her, but she did like staring out into the night sky.

Ham explained that Barker would be the very first living thing to see the world from space.

Wow! Imagine that!

★ Good Luck
Barker.
